2. The court has agreed to waive fees, and Kennedy is grateful and apologizes for being poor but does not apologize for his Investiture oaths, which he added an additional oath to God of monastic, self-sacrifice of voluntary poverty.

3. Kennedy promises to pay the court fees in divine right time for his vow of poverty is temporary, and self sacrifice was not part of his Investiture oath (papal Knighthood) in a church of God.³

Respectfully submitted,

³ At his Investiture ceremony in a church of God more than ten years ago, Kennedy promised to work to relieve human suffering worldwide, and Kennedy has never (knowingly and/or intentionally) violated his oath. His (self-imposed) oath of poverty and self sacrifice helped Kennedy to serve the poor as both a priest (Eastern Rite) and medical missionary. Penitents included undeclared alcoholics and homeless in New York City and Lehigh County, Pennsylvania and other places. Kennedy published a Pennsylvania Legal Notice to affirm his title as Chevallier Reverend, and said title is lawful under church and international law. Kennedy states defendants perhaps also knowingly violated international treaty law.
